The off-Broadway production of The Fantasticks ran a total of 42 years making it the world's longest-running musical! The story concerns two neighboring fathers who put up a wall between their houses to ensure that their children fall in love (because they know children always do what their parents forbid!). After the children do fall in love, they discover their fathers' plot and they each go off and experience the world.

Elements of the musical are drawn from the story of Pyramus and Thisbe, its story winding its way through Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet and A Midsummer Night's Dream as well as Donizetti's L'Elisir d'Amore and Rostand's play. Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt's classic score feature's titles including Much More, I Can See It and the instantly familiar Try To Remember.

Starring local boy, Luke Brady, it would be great to get a group together to support him in his West End debut.

In Nick Stafford's stage version of Michael Morpurgo's 1982 book, young Albert's beloved horse Joey is sold to the cavalry to France during the First World War. Unable to forget Joey and still too young to enlist, the boy embarks on a treacherous mission to find the horse and bring him home. On stage, horses, children and other selected characters are brought to life by life-sized puppets created by Basil Jones and Adrian Kohler for South African puppet company Handspring. The puppets, and set designs by Rae Smith, earned War Horse Best Design prizes at the Evening Standard, Critics' Circle and Laurence Olivier awards.
