

Theatre & Dinner Trip

Wednesday 4th August

Dinner and Theatre The Mill at Sonning

With much of the original structure retained, this 18th Century Flour Mill has been converted into a renowned Dinner Theatre. Patrons enjoy a fresh home-cooked meal - with not a microwave in sight! - before watching the performance in the 215 seat air conditioned auditorium.

Pre-dinner drinks with a view of The Thames or watching the working Waterwheel in the bar, is an added treat.

Making our sixth visit to The Mill at Sonning we expect this trip to be less adventurous than our last in January, which was cut short due to the snow, but just as enjoyable. If some sun is offered up this time round, we will be able to sit outside and enjoy a drink whilst admiring the stunning Mill and its beautiful surroundings.

After the success of Plaza Suite in 2008 and The Odd Couple last August, we have another chance to enjoy the magical combination of Neil Simon's comic genius under the direction of the multi-talented Anthony Valentine - Raffles, Colditz, Callan and most recently Coronation Street. Terence Booth appears once again to entertain us with his dry delivery and great comic timing.

Herb Tucker has it easy. He lives in a Hollywood beach house, has a beautiful and adoring girlfriend, Steffy, and makes his living as a screenwriter ... Well, it's not quite like that. Herb is struggling with writer's block, his beach house is a cheap and colourless bungalow, and he can't bring himself to propose marriage.

Cue the arrival of the lively and determined Libby, a nineteen year old who speaks to her dead grandmother and dreams of becoming a movie star in any way she can! We soon discover that Libby is Herb's daughter, whom he hasn't seen since he walked out on her mother sixteen years previously. Libby, demanding that Herb helps her break into the movie business, moves in, and soon emotions run high as Herb is forced to deal with his past, his responsibilities as a father, and his fear of commitment.

The legendary Neil Simon has blessed us with plays such as The Odd Couple and Barefoot in The Park - I Ought To Be In Pictures is another comedy-drama that will have you laughing out loud at its hilarious dialogue but also leave you moved with moments of truth and tenderness.
